

Centre for Policing Research and Learning

Social Media and Policing

8th February 2017, The Open University Milton Keynes

This one-day workshop will provide an interdisciplinary exploration of the role of social media in policing and feature contributions from computing, public innovation, psychology, technology and data analytics.

As well as research presentations from leading academics and practitioners, the workshop will include several interactive demonstrations, including a tool designed for forensically-sound collection of evidence from social media accounts

Topics will include:

- Collecting evidence from social media accounts
- Social Media Strategies
- Using Twitter to identify radicalisation
- PACE, citizen enquirers and social media
- What makes a successful police tweet?
- A narrative approach to police forces' use of Facebook
- Identifying grooming through social media
- Surveying police forces' use of Facebook

Speakers will include:

- Prof. Albert Meijer, Professor of Public Innovation, Utrecht University.
- Prof. Harith Alani, Knowledge Media Institute, The Open University
- Prof. Bashar Nuseibeh, School of Computing & Communications, The Open University
- Prof. Graham Pike, School of Psychology, The Open University
- Dr Zoe Walkington, School of Psychology, The Open University
- Dr Ailsa Strathie, School of Psychology, The Open University
- Dr Catriona Havard, School of Psychology, The Open University
- Dr Hayley Ness, School of Psychology, The Open University
- Dr Thein Tun, School of Computing & Communications, The Open University
- Dr Arosha Bandara, School of Computing & Communications, The Open University

To book your place or for more information please contact: OUPC@open.ac.uk

Consortium members will get priority booking

Please note, the workshop is free to attend. However, a £50 fee will be charged for those who have booked but who do not attend and have not agreed cancellation with us. .